

Payment Systems Regulator (PSR) New regulations

A new era in payments comes into force from July 2023

Now is the perfect time to ensure you are prepared ahead of time

PSR Mirror acceptcards® Payment Solutions

Here at acceptcards® we offer access to the whole UK payments market for our partners and customers, ensuring they get the best advice and merchant services solutions that match their requirements.

The new regulations are an attempt by PSR to bring customer choice to the payments sector, something we have championed forever.

CEO, acceptcards® - Richard Bradley has been calling for changes the sector, he said "I welcome the PSR's new regulations and as the UK's largest independent broker we understand the importance of flexibility and choice the payments sector to serve businesses better"

He continued "There is more work for the PSR to do in making the merchant services sector more transparent and easier for businesses to navigate, and whilst this takes time to come into force, we will continue to lead the way in our open approach for all merchants to have access the whole payments market to switch and save and be in control of their payment facilities.

The PSR understand the crucial role of payment services to the businesses that use them to accept payments & to the consumers using them to pay. They believe businesses could be saving thousands of pounds a year if it was simpler for them to compare prices and switch providers.

The measures being introduced will make it easier for the 1.5 million small and medium sized businesses in the UK to do this, benefiting both them and their customers.

Katie Fitzgerald PSR Head of Policy said "The National Federation of Retail Newsagents estimate its members switched acquirers, saved between £100 and £450 per month on the cost of processing card payments. This means businesses could potentially save between £1200 to - £5,400 a year."
